

Control Vision Announces Pocket MFD™-- Next Generation Handheld GPS

Plans a Complete System Give-away Contest at AOPA Expo

October 19, 2004--Pittsburg, KS: Control Vision, makers of award-winning Anywhere Map®, Anywhere Wx®, and Pocket Plates™ has just raised the bar on handheld GPS systems with a suite of advanced capabilities. The Kansas company announced Anywhere Map Version 1.6; a next-generation moving map application with new features such as advanced VNAV, improved weather integration, an all-new Emergency Landing Mode, improved graphics, and user-definable views. The system takes advantage of the new Hewlett Packard iPAQ 4700 series PDA with a larger, higher resolution color screen, higher performance, and slim form factor. This sleek system mounts in a newly designed Citadel™ mount that protects the connector and makes installation a snap.

"We call it the Pocket MFD™", said Jay Humbar, President and CEO. "A pilot now has a complete GPS navigation system including XM WX™ weather avoidance and legal instrument approach plates, all on a system that still slips into a shirt pocket."

Humbar pointed out that General Aviation is seeing the days of proprietary handheld GPS systems that supply only navigation coming to a close. "Pilots are asking," said Humbar, "why should I buy a brick-sized unit that won't do anything different three years from now than the day it comes out of the box?"

"We continually advance Anywhere Map's features and functions with software upgrades that cost a third of competitors' data-only subscriptions," he said. "When you add XM weather and Pocket Plates, you have all the functionality of a glass cockpit in the palm of your hand; Safety, Efficiency, Increased Aircraft Utility—all for a fraction of the initial and ongoing cost of panel systems."

"Anywhere Map is the Swiss Army Knife of GPS systems," commented Aero-News.net's Jim Campbell.

The AOPA Expo Buttons and Business Card Contest!

One lucky AOPA Expo attendee can get a complete Anywhere Map system, FREE!

Grand Prize: Control Vision is giving away a new Anywhere Map system complete with Anywhere Map Version 1.6, a new HP iPAQ 4705, a Citadel mount, plus some goodies. If the winner already has Anywhere Map, they get an Anywhere Wx with XM WX upgrade! Simply stop by the Control Vision Booth (555-557) at AOPA Expo and drop a business card in the bucket. If you don't have a card, we'll have a form there for you to complete. See www.anywheremap.com for contest rules. Winner will be drawn on October 26, 2004 and notified by email.

Here's another way to win Anywhere Map stuff at AOPA Expo. We will have cool Pocket MFD buttons at our booth. Come get one and put it on. Our "spotters" will be on the show floor looking for people wearing them. If they see you wearing your Pocket MFD button, you'll be eligible to win Pocket Plates or Anywhere Map software or even a GPS! All winners must agree to contest rules.
